unblushing impudence, charge that the Fillmore men of Pennsylvania have entered into a treaty with Morgan with the Fremont party. They have published the spurious Hekket proposed as a platform for the Republican extra-curricular committee as a trap-draw to Fillmore men into the support of Fremont. These Sag-wag-ed editors know very well that the Fillmore men of Pennsylvania have rejected it. It is their own error-proposition of fusion coming from whatever quarter. They know very well that the tickets published by them are purely inventions of a few Fremont workmen and that they have been "ubiquitously and emphatically repudiated by the Fillmore men of Pennsylvania, and they know too that the charge of fusion against the Fillmore men of Pennsylvania is barely false and utterly without foundation."

party in all parts of the State, and the Filmore men there have nobly and gallantly determined to stand by their own colors, to vote only for their own candidates, and to unite with no one but those who will give their support to Fillmore and Douglas.

An eloquent Fremont speaker, during the evening, said that he was in a peculiar position to allusion, secretly assembled on the night of the 21st inst., and put out two tickets having the names of twenty-six electors, some on both, and the names of John C. Fremont for the twenty-seventh on one, and Edward Douglas for the twenty-seventh on the other. These tickets, said he, were repudiated by the Fillmore men. The same has been everywhere exposed and denounced, and the Fillmore party stands pure and unalloyed in its integrity, refusing to form an alliance with any other party, and confident that they will carry the State of New York on their ticket. The following address was given by Fillmore and Douglas respectively:

King Kings are the exception rather than the rule, it is scarcely so bad as the confession made by Walter Savage Landau to our countrymen that he had never heard of Huxford even by name.

A lot of a thousand dollars was received through one of the Sag-Night parties at this city upon the vote of Kentucky. A gentleman of Russellville wrote to us to have it taken in his behalf. A friend of ours called at the appointed place to make the arrangement, but the Sag-Night who had prepared to be abroad that he had changed his mind. We congratulate him.

We are, indeed, glad that Mr. Putnam, the original author of the published explanation, has done so wrong. We did not know that he was the well agent referred to in the letter we published the other day. His life lived in this city several years, and our efforts have been indebted to him for direct contributions. Still the fact remains, that a package of

To the Editors of the Louisville Journal.

GEORGE W. BROWN.

Y^{ou} attempt to do me a grievous wrong. You have charged me with violating a sworn trust. Your correspondent says that I threw away my life for a woman. I have never known your correspondent by reputation to be respectable columns, but he is also a fair-minded man. He has not been able to purify his column that discretion that always characterizes the true gentleman, and preserve his credit from being brought into disrepute as receiving a wrong himself.

From information I received this day at Beatty's, I have been able to ascertain that the fellow who weekly journals was not Benno, directed to Cropper's. That I know and he got up the complaint. I have never been guilty of such a base and contemptible outrage and violation of a moral trust is not founded in fact, but innocent of all fault.

I wish your correspondent to meet me at Boston P. O. on Tuesday morning, and to be ready to go to New York at 10 o'clock.

Supporting that your version of the affair was the results of the press, I hope in justice to the friends of the cause, to publish the following papers which have published the first and also copy this.

W. A. PUTNAM, R. L. Knight.

PHILADELPHIA, OCT. 21.

Last night, a meeting of the friends of Putnam and Fillmore was held at the Republican Headquarters, to select delegates to the Hartford Convention. The following gentlemen were elected to the ticket. Much confusion prevailed. Resolutions were adopted repudiating the Convention, endorsing Fillmore and Fremont, and declaring that no bloodshed is expected. It was also decided to send a delegation of seven able and skilful orators to New York and Brooklyn. Subsequently the Republican Headquarters were closed, and the delegates to the quarters, the meeting resolved to elect as delegates Putnam and Fillmore, and repudiated the attempt held a Union Convention.

New York, Oct. 21.

The State Fillmore Electoral College met here to-day and adopted resolutions endorsing the circular recently issued by Messrs. Sanderson, Clyde, Day, and others, at Philadelphia repudiating a fusion with any other party, and urging the Americans to labor unceasingly for their candidate.

MONTELEONE, Oct. 22.
